Yes – NRC has been told to hold off. BTW – if we give them the topic for the Dec public meeting next week (90 day notice date is Sept 17) they can start using some of the funds we left on the task order that were intended to cover the Oct meeting.

Agree. However, in response to Joe's other observation, I think we should let NRC know they should hold off on consulting experts.

Let's plan to announce this Monday or Tuesday, unless anyone thinks that's problematic.

Just want to check on the timing of this announcement? Are we going to issue this on today or Monday? I have notified NRC and ICF and we are leaving our websites (EPA, NRC, and Eventbrite) up until we issue this notice. BTW NRC was going to start contacting potential experts today.

Thanks
Joe D.

OK, but it wasn't a "public meeting on an assessment." It was a public meeting on a topic that arose from an assessment still in peer review." [I like "still" to suggest how long it's been.]

I don't want someone to spin this that we are waiting to be able to "stack" the meeting with CAAC members.

What about this....

Lek decided late yesterday afternoon to postpone.

Let me propose something really simple:

Huh.
Those are certainly valid concerns and I think you are correct about #1

Nicely done. I have a few paranoid thoughts for consideration....

Here, in all its glory, is a hypothetical draft desk statement that would be provided to public affairs to explain our decision making, should we ultimately cancel the October public science meeting. Please take a look at this and provide me edits as soon as possible. And if you have better ideas for a rationale, I'm all ears.
